The litigation between lawyer Goode and Alex Berry of Condon, still boils with unabated fury. Berry moved to Marion county about three weeks ago, taking along a few head of horses on which Goode claims to hold a mortgage. Last week he had Berry arrested on a charge of larceny by bailee, and Constable Carlisle went down to Salem and brought him back to Arlington. The Globe says Berry demanded a trial, and as Goode did not appear to conduct the prosecution, Squire Zeigler dismissed the case and Berry was turned loose. Thus poor old Gilliam is "in for it" again to the tune of several hundred dollars unnecessaav expense. It would be a grand thing for the country if the law compelled prosecuting witnesses in such cases to give bonds for the costs.
